MIDDLE EASTERN BIBLE STUDY: A REFLECTION ON OUR ANCIENT FAITH

BY RITA SHEMMAI AND ISABELLA MIKHAIL, MEMBERS OF THE MIDDLE EASTERN BIBLE STUDY

April, recognized as Middle Eastern/Arab Heritage Month, is a meaningful time to reflect on the richness of our culture, traditions, and most importantly, our faith. Middle Eastern Bible Study (MEBS) at St. Mary has become a space where all of these come together through community.

In the Acts of the Apostles, we are reminded that “it was in Antioch that the disciples were first called Christians.” This is a part of our identity and is very apparent in our ancient liturgies. The lands our families come from are the same lands where Christianity first spread, and being part of MEBS is a reminder that our traditions today continue what began thousands of years ago. What makes our group so meaningful is its diversity. MEBS brings together students from Chaldean, Maronite, Roman Catholic, Assyrian Church of the East, Eastern Orthodox, and Coptic backgrounds. While our liturgies may have different expressions, they share the same origins, reverence, and connection to the early Church.

Bella (Chaldean Tradition)

I love the Aramaic language spoken by Chaldeans. It is ancient and believed to be the language of Jesus, which makes it incredibly special. Hearing it during the Mass creates a space where I feel a deep connection to Christ and His Church. I also appreciate how we continue to keep this holy language alive by teaching it to younger generations. It is a reminder that our faith has been passed down through the centuries and remains alive today.

Losian (Chaldean Tradition)

One of my favorite traditions is Ba’utha, the Supplication of the Ninevites, a three-day fast observed before Lent. It is rooted in the story of Jonah and reminds us of the people of Nineveh's repentance and God’s mercy toward them. What makes Ba’utha powerful is its communal nature. We all fast, pray, and turn back to God together. This tradition has been carried through generations, even in times of hardship, as a way of asking for God’s mercy and healing. No matter how far we may feel, God is always ready to receive us when we return to Him.

Rita (Maronite Tradition)

A meaningful Maronite tradition to me is Job Wednesday, also known as the Rite of the Lamp, during Passion Week. This day focuses on healing and renewal, through prayer with blessed dough and oil. A main part of the tradition includes a piece of dough with seven lit wicks placed into it. The dough represents our human brokenness, shaped and fragile, while the seven wicks represent images of prophecies from Scripture and God’s light in the midst of suffering. Each person gets anointed with the oil and takes a piece of the dough home to use for bread. It is a beautiful reminder that even in suffering, there is always healing and hope with Christ.

Together, these traditions reflect the depth and beauty of our Middle Eastern Christian identity. At MEBS, we experience the Word of God through our shared cultures and faith.

Joyful memories from the Middle Eastern Bible Study retreat on April 10.

JESUIT FRIENDS AND ALUMNI NETWORK (JFAN) DETROIT: ARCHITECTURE AND GESU DETROIT

Join Jesuit friends and alumni on Wednesday, May 13, 2026 for a wine and cheese reception at the historic Gesu Catholic Church. The evening will feature the history, families, art, and architecture of the parish founded by Jesuits in 1922 and once home to four Detroit mayors, several congressmen and the renowned Fisher Brothers. This event will share rare architectural drawings and antique stained-glass windows design – some dating back to the late 1800s from two Detroit families who long worked with the Jesuits and the Archdiocese of Detroit. The two families behind the firms of Diehl & Diehl Architects and Detroit Stained Glass Works shaped our city's sacred spaces.

Special guests include Paul G. Diehl, grandson of original architect George F. Diehl and descended from the founders of Detroit Stained Glass Works; Patricia Montemurri, award-winning journalist; and Mary Clare McCormick, Detroit Sacred Art archivist. The evening will include a Mass, wine and cheese reception, and a tour of this historic worship site. Register by May 1st <https://www.jfanusa.org/detroit>
